COUNTER-TERRORISM EXPERT NEEDED

A

That was the message to Diane Schroer, a 25-year Army Special Forces Officer, specializing in counter-insurgency and counter-terrorism. Diane spent her career conducting extensive operations, briefing decision makers and developing strategies to keep our homeland safe. Upon her retirement, Diane was offered a government job as a counter-terrorism expert.

For her whole life, Diane knew she was meant to be a woman even though she was born a man. When she told her employers she was transitioning from male to female under the guidance of her doctors, they withdrew the job offer.

Most Americans believe federal law already protects transgender people like Diane from discrimination. It doesn't. And 78 percent of voters think it should be illegal to fire someone just because they are transgender.

Let Diane get to work for America.
